"Me? I'm O.K. But you should see the other kid! The dumb guy thought he knew all about bike brakes. Tried to tell me those old-fashioned handlebar brakes work better'n my Bendix brakes. What a creep! Anybody knows Bendix Automatics start faster, shift easier, stop smoother. Guess that's why more U.S.-built bikes are sold with Bendix Automatics than 3-speed brakes. Like to have 'em on your bike? Many students haven't developed good studying habits. I have found one to be very useful. It consists of eight easy and profitable steps.

1. Be sure you understand the assignment; what to do, what you must know, and then write it down.
2. Make use of study time in school: study halls, library periods, and all other free time.
3. Set a certain time of the day to study.
4. Set a certain place for study. Be sure to remove all distractions: radio, television, and other people talking to you.
5. Have everything handy when you sit down to study: pencils, paper, reference books.
6. Start with the hardest subjects first, reading carefully the entire lesson, and then go back and reread the main topics.
7. Review all your notes and previous day's work that might help you understand the lesson better.
8. Concentrate on your lesson, so that the fresh knowledge will last from day to day.

These study habits will not only help you now, but also when you are in high school and college, and the subjects you are studying become more difficult.

Have you ever been to the zoo? Recently we went, and the animal that impressed me most was the Giraffe. When we went home I decided to look into the history of the Giraffe. This is what I found out.

The Giraffe is taller than any other living animal. It may grow to be sixteen feet tall or taller. Its body is about the size of a horse's body. Its front legs may be nine or ten feet long. Its neck may be six or seven feet long. The Giraffe has a long neck. It can eat the leaves that are on the high branches of the trees that grow in the country where it lives.

Giraffes are found only in Central and South Africa, mainly in desert regions.

The Giraffe's neck is so long that the animal must spread its legs far apart in order to get a drink of water.

The Arabs who hunt the Giraffe use its flesh for food and its skin for leather.

I think the Giraffe is one of the most interesting animals I've ever seen.

Nancy has sent us a letter about the Guide Dog she trained. We think you might like to hear about it.

Do you know what a Guide Dog is? Well, I found out when I applied to raise a Guide Dog puppy.

A Guide Dog can mean the hope and happiness for someone who lives in darkness, someone who is blind.

Guide Dogs are usually German Shepherds, Golden Retrievers or Black Labrador Retrievers.

Guide Dog puppies are given to 4-H club members to raise and train for one year. The puppies are also taught love, companionship and devotion. During this one year period my puppy "Fish" and I have been meeting with his two sisters "Folla" and "Francie" to have training classes.

At the end of the year the dogs go back to the school where they will be given further training before passing tests to become Guide Dogs.

The San Rafael Guide Dogs for the Blind of California, raise and train dogs in this manner. I think this is a very worthwhile way to spend your spare time.

Archie: "What do you call someone who can't keep his balance on the bus?"
Jughead: "A Laplander."

Miss Grundy: "What is an autobiography?"

Moose: "Er—the life story of an automobile."

Jughead sat in the back of the room sniffing and rubbing his nose. Finally Professor Flutesnoot walked over to him and said. "Jughead, do you have a handkerchief?"

"Yes," answered Jughead, "but my mother said I shouldn't lend it to anyone."
